BELOW: Students became aware of the horrors of drugs through reports and displays.

UPPER LEFT: Seniors displayed creative ability by writing and acting in the prize winning Christmas play.

CENTER: Eighth graders quickly became conscious of the high school life.

Homecoming, dances, assemblies, plays, the prom, the Miss P.C.H.S. beauty contest, and graduation provided a change of pace from the regular class routine. These were the events that highlighted the year as one to remember.

Students Fill Life With

"There is a Santa Claus" introduced Kenny Koontz, Tammy Wolfe, and Gail Good as tense players.

Vickie Hansbrough smiled while putting tree ornaments on the tree for the Christmas Dance sponsored by the Seniors.

Dances provide socializing time

Name the occasion and there were dances to celebrate them, whether it be an after game victory celebration or a romantic St. Valentine's evening. At the dances it appeared always to be the same regardless of the occasion. The boys grouped together near the door while the girls fluttered here and there to gain attention. As the lights dimmed and the music became moving the attention was gained and dancing and socializing took place.

The members of the Valentine Court were queen Debbie Jenkins, and princesses Barbara Thomas, Barbara Cubbage, Vonna Hott, Debbie Sampson, and Donna Hilliards.

Comer surprises fans with royal title

Masses swarmed to the school grounds on Friday, October 15, 1971. The reason? Our homecoming. Air was tense, heated with emotion. Nerves were on edge, and there was hope, always hope. There were people, people everywhere filling the bleachers, the banks, the fence, and the field. Everyone strained toward victory. We had to win. This was Luray our arch-rival. Win, Win, Win. . .

And then it was over, defeated—by one point. We were crushed, and yet we regained our spirits, our pride in our boys and our school with talk of another time—a time for victory. On Saturday night Abraham belted the sounds of soul which helped to heal the pangs of the Friday night loss.

The Homecoming game brought the bitter taste of defeat.

Miss P.C.H.S. is Darlene Freeze

On February 5, 1972, the Monogram Club sponsored the annual Miss P.C.H.S. Beauty Contest. An overflowing crowd waited anxiously for the naming and crowning of Miss P.C.H.S.

Thirty-three flurried girls dressed backstage, and practiced smiling and laughed nervously, scared to walk that short distance that seemed so incredibly long with all those masses of faces.

Finally the judges narrowed down the numbers with each girl feeling a bitter disappointment, but throwing their hopes on those final contestants who were the favorites. Tension mounted behind the stage, as the girls listened for their numbers.

The master of ceremonies called the last three numbers. Second runner-up was Tracy Mills. First runner-up was Debbie May. The tension mounted—the winner of the Miss P.C.H.S. contest for 1972 was Darlene Freeze! There was the frenzy of disbelief, excitement, happiness, and congratulations. For some there was disappointment, but they all had fun. Only one can win, and win she did!

After the excitement was over Janey McDaniel felt as wilted as her rose.

Assemblies varied class routine

Assemblies provided time to be entertained, to honor students, to hear campaign speeches, to install new officers, to learn about different cultures, or to view individual talent. The most controversial program was the traditional senior assembly with the new twist.

TOP: One of the Southeast School Assemblies provided music from water filled bottles.
CENTER LEFT: The atomic world assembly was a hair raising experience for this blonde.
CENTER RIGHT: It was pie in the face for Donnie Lam at the Rat Day Assembly.

Geraldine (Winston Majors) proved to be the show stopper at one assembly.

TOP RIGHT: Mother Webb (Kathy Comer) found that she can't say anything, even though she felt young marriage is wrong.

Seniors present "Our Town"

On April 21 and 22, the Senior class presented "Our Town", a drama written by Thornton Wilder depicting life in the early 1900's.

The play, which depicted life in a small town very much like Shenandoah or Stanley, portrayed the lives of several people living ordinary lives.

In "Our Town" we saw the Webb family and the Gibbs family (next door neighbors) their friends, and enemies. The stage manager (Randy Keyser) narrated the confused, but enlightening romance of George Gibbs (Jimmy Price) and Emily Webb (Cindy Good). The audience gazed in awe at the beautiful wedding and held their breath throughout the dramatic death scene.

"Our Town" was not only labeled a success by the audience as a symbolic presentation of life in yesteryear, but also of that today!

Juniors and Seniors danced and enjoyed music by the Sound Foundation.

Superstar is successful

Black lights, a bubble machine, a reflecting mirrored ball, and psychedelic posters trimmed with black foil created an appropriate background for the Junior-Senior Prom entitled "Superstar". The grand march flowed with each girl in a formal gown escorted by tuxedoed gentleman. Refreshments of super star cookies and other goodies were served by hippie clad servants wearing head bands. All in attendance were happy and carefree as the evening progressed with the rapid beat of The Sound Foundation. In the end tired juniors and elated seniors headed home with a memory of a super evening.

picnics, barbecue, and honors

The end of the year marked a time of rushing to get everything accomplished at once. It seemed that May was the busiest of all with the Junior-Senior Prom, picnics and outings by various clubs and classes, the final money making project for the school, the chicken barbecue, senior trips, and the receiving of awards and honors. This was the time when the Boys' and Girls' State representatives were selected. Seniors took trips to Luray and Washington. Honor graduates were announced just before graduation which culminated the year's activities.

an end and a beginning

On June 5, "The Halls of Ivy" echoed an end of the old and a beginning of the new for the seniors because this was their commencement. At the outdoor exercise, Jimmy Price, Laura Smith, and Cynthia Good, chosen graduation speakers, presented optimistic advice to fellow classmates. Several seniors were honored with distinguishing awards. Vicki Hansbrough was the recipient of the Arion award. Gary Buracker carried away three awards. Others receiving awards were Rick Louderback, Dorothy Ryder, Barbara Thomas, Sherry Comer, and Hoye Hott.

Thinking reflectively, Barbara Thomas, DAR recipient, pon-Barbara dered her tomorrows.

The familiar old-time tales of lost homework, along with little brothers that spilled chocolate milk on History papers and mud puddles on the way to school, were not forgotten by students 1971-72.

"Do we have a test in here? You didn't even tell us!" exclaimed Juniors the day after the first basketball game.

"I forgot all about reading the chapter. Can I wait until tomorrow to answer the questions?"

Students, in general, will never change. After being reminded daily for a month in advance, most all Composition-Speech students waited until the last week to work on their research papers. And how many Geometry 'students learned the theorems and postulates when they were instructed to do so?

Nevertheless, the classes continued their day-to-day work schedule and students continued to try to grasp their education.

Math adds audio-visuals

BELOW: Carl Quintrell tried to concentrate on his Trigonometry assignment, but his extracurricular seemed to haunt his mind.

RIGHT: Larry Sullivan, foreground, was apparently too excited about the end of school to listen to Mr. Slagell.

General mathematics classes changed little as math is a fairly stable course of study. Miss Norman continued using strict discipline in coaching underclassmen in Math 8. More visual aids were used for the first time to assist teachers and instruct pupils in homework assignments. In all Algebra classes, students reviewed for tests, procrastinated, and had numbers coming out of their ears. Pythagoras was studied again in Geometry, along with seemingly hundreds of theorems.

Jimmy Price revealed the details of Hesse's SIDDHARTHA while Sherry Comer and Kenton Pettit await their chance.

English classes progressed with the times as drama, discussion, and modern poetry became a part of the everyday schedule. Tiresome grammar lessons were repeated, and literature broadened students' knowledge of people and their environment.

The familiar "I hate poetry" phrase gradually diminished as students learned they could easily identify with known poets. Many students, in and out of class, began expressing their feeling by means of free verse and rhythmic poetry.

English highlights included the SCOPE MAGAZINE, Negro poetry, Crane's THE RED BADGE OF COURAGE, CANTERBURY'S TALES, THE OUTSIDERS, and, of course, Shakespeare.

Advanced Composition—Speech class prepared reluctant upperclassmen for college. Students presented speeches, wrote newspapers, and a novelette, which Mr. Mauzy graded somewhere in the mountains.

Foreign languages gave students insight as to the customs of french and Spanish-speaking countries. Students enrolled in French and Spanish classes mostly because they were required for admission to colleges. But participants were soon engrossed in the romanticism and newness of learning about a different world — one which in various ways, was very different from their own.

Language involves all students

President's visits add new dimensions to social studies

Maps, dates, current events, 1040
Forms and TIME magazines formulated the program which encompasses Social Studies, World History, SociologyEconomics, U.S. History, Geography, and Government.

Projects abounded the social studies curriculum with students making maps, presenting oral and written reports and even some ballad writing.

With the year's economic controls, Phase I and II, students learned that they too could be affected by the President's decisions. Students followed international affairs such as the Vietnam War and Nixon's China and Moscow visits knowing that they would influence their future.

Science gives a chance to experiment

Science studies paralleled with worldwide progress as experimentation, along with accidents and mistakes, led to new discoveries in the classroom. Small, slimy earthworms led to the dissection of frogs in Biology class. Chemistry partners advanced from boiling water to constructing distilling operations.

A fairly large number of seniors enrolled in Physics and found it to be difficult at times, but practical for future use. Studious Juniors who took Chemistry for a college prep course learned all about molecular weights and the elements, along with Mr. Stern's boyhood adventures. Biology was a different kind of class for Sophomores, as experiments and projects were new to them. Much of the work consisted of minor operations and identifying the internal organs of experimental frogs and worms. Earth Science was a conglomeration of topography, geology and geography along with other earth-related studies. Eighth graders were required to take Science 8, which covered briefly all branches of science, including the soil, the stars and genetics.

Choral and art add beauty to school life

Different projects and ideas were explored under the direction of a new art teacher, Mrs. Gray. The art of tying knots, macrame, was learned and students made belts and wall hangings. Others weaved pocketbooks and decorations. Amateur potters used the potters' wheel to form bowls and molded clay into various shapes to be fired in the kiln.

Leathercrafts were taught and students made headbands, belts, rings and many other things. A display was set up in the cafeteria by art students who sold their handiwork. All profits went to the Art Department to purchase more supplies.

Art history, including everything from Gothic structure to Op Art, was studied for several weeks.

The Choral class, also led by a first year instructor, was aided greatly by new voices. Many different types of music was sung, varying from gospel to modern and contemporary selections. A single class was offered, but participation and enthusiasm seemed to make it doubled in size.

Band uniforms add flair

"Practice, practice. You've got to learn the routine!" were the commands of Miss Meyers, a first year band instructor who brought with her new music, new ideas, but most important, spirit. With this new-found spirit, "The Marching Panther Band" sounded off at football games, pep rallies, parades and school and community concerts.

New band uniforms were finally purchased after several years of waiting. Band members canvassed the community for donations, held concerts, sold cow bells and Christmas candles, and won cash prizes in parades to help offset the expense of their uniforms.

The band left for the District Band Festival with much enthusiasm, but received a "Fair" rating on Grade 5 music. This, however, didn't dampen their endeavors as they held a successful Spring Concert and made an appearance at the dedication of the Luray Caverns Airport.

Chosen members of the band, Nancy Parlett, Vickie Hansbrough, Larry Housden, Rick Louderback and Wayne Showalter, attended All District Band at Turner Ashby High School and participated in the activities there.

Business courses reach the majority

BELOW: Carla Berry used the printing calculator to help develop clerical skills.

A majority of all students at Page enroll in at least one business course sometime during their five years. Thirty-nine percent of the whole student body took enough business courses to be considered "business majors." Other students, taking Academic and Vocational courses enrolled in Business classes, usually typing, to learn a specific skill.

The Business Department again kept up its good reputation in and out of school. Many of the graduating seniors got secretarial and other business oriented jobs through the Business Department. The business students gained on-the-job experience by typing and duplicating athletic programs, mimeographing the monthly school newsletter, and performing various secretarial duties for the teachers.

operation with the Distributive Education program.

Vocational courses add

Home Economics proved to be a relaxing course for most participants. Girls created their first dress, burned cookies, made neck ties, planned weddings and babies, and invited guests to dinners and teas. "Where is the seampicker?" became a familiar question in Home Ec. Special.

In an ecology-minded world, agriculture students learned how to cope with tomorrow's problems of supply with modern technology.

Many of the students enrolled in the four years of agriculture lived on farms and were already familiar with techniques that were being used.

Industrial Arts included building trades, woodworking, and generally, how to make things. Shop students built cabinets, picnic tables, gun racks, and other useful items.

All skills learned were available for practical use in the students' life.

UPPER RIGHT: Um-good! Learning how to cook was a mandatory objective for Cindy Deane.

Physical education, health, and drivers

Whether the activity be up on the hill playing softball, doing daily exercises in the gym, or running the 600 yard dash on the track field, Physical Education students exhausted themselves most every day.

All Eighth graders, Freshmen and Sophomores were required to take P.E. The course was split with a Health class for eighth graders, a First Aid class for Freshmen, and Driver's Education for Sophomores. Along with Driver's Education came "On the Road Driving" for students who were trying to get their Driver's License. A few minor accidents in the Driver's Ed car warned all drivers to be more cautious.

ces a winning season

Winning an unfamiliar word to Page County football fans finally came into existence as the Panthers made the supporters stand up and take notice. After years of being on the bottom, we were finally in the race. We could and did win. Off with a bang, the Pagemen stumped the Stuarts Draft Cougars by a score of 6-0. Sizzling 80° weather proved to be detrimental to a win as the Dragons slipped by us 24-22.

An 8-0 victory over our rival Elkton rallied crushed spirits and psyched the players and students up for an impressive win over Montevideo 24-0. Unfortunately, after a week of planning by the Monogram Club and Cheerleaders, Homecoming was a one-point disappointment. Luray edged by us 9-8. After another victory over Franklin 42-0 the Panthers closed out a brighter season with a final record of .500.

Cagers seed second in district

An extended football season shortened preseason preparation for varsity basketball, however, enthusiasm, sacrifice, teamwork, and aggressiveness brought Page from the lean years of losing to make '72 the year of the cat. The seasonal record was 15 wins and 5 losses, including the tourney games. For the first time in 5 years the team defeated the Montevideo Maroons. During the Rappahnock game, the team broke the school high scoring record by racking up 109 points. The most glorious, although somewhat ironic, highlight was Page ending Luray's 55 game winning streak, with a 55-54 score on Ken Breeden's last second lay-up. It seemed only proper that Page should end the streak that it started 3 years ago. The team seeded second place in the Skyline District. Ken Breeden made All-District team, while Billy Buracker and Jimmy Price received honorable mentions.

Page glovemen ended the season with nine wins and five losses, which placed them second in the Skyline District. Pitching was a decisive factor in the wins of Page. With four veterans, fifteen rookies, and two new coaches the track team experienced a disappointing seasonal record. However, Bruce Smith broke the pole-vaulting record of 11 feet 6 inches and went on to be first in the state with the record of 11 feet 9 inches. This was the first time anyone placed first in the state in the history of Page County.

Track players were Norman Gordon, Bruce Smith, Perry Burner, Ronnie Sours, Jim Ryan, Johnny Woodward, Randal Good, Johnny Deavers, L. B. Crawford, Larry Burke, Connie Finch, Ellis Southers, Jeff Mayes,

Cheerleaders attend NCA camp

With two final squads of 12 the J.V. and Varsity Cheerleaders successfully made it through another year. Making signs, selling booster badges, and rushing to get homework and hair done before a game make up only a small part of a cheerleader's life. "Oh, I know I'll goof up S-C-O-R-E!" and "My blouse is filthy," were familiar exclamations. But being rewarded with a victory, and just representing Page made duty a pleasure.

TOP SEQUENCE: Janey McDaniel caught the spirit of the game with her display of anticipation and appreciation

Cheerleaders rejoiced following a J.V. victory over Madison.

Our girls' basketball team coached by Mr. John Elia consisted of thirteen J.V.'s with ten members on the Varsity team. Mary Ellen Jenkins star senior player led the Varsity to four victories in the Skyline District. After an unsuccessful season, the J.V.'s won their last game against Strasburg 18-14.

Newspaper and yearbook record year of events

Inexperienced students became acquainted with the arts of journalism in the newspaper and year-book staffs. There were deadlines to meet (often past due), copy to write and revise, pictures to take and crop, layouts to design, in essence a year of events to record. While sponsors prodded, probed, and censored, the staffs labored reluctantly to accomplish the task of creating memorable literary publications.

Editors of the newspaper, Hoye Hott and Shelia May, contemplated the do's and don'ts of editorializing.

WE CAN WORK IT OUT!, the motto adopted by the State S.C.A. became the guiding force for the Page County High S.C.A. Through various projects the club sought to achieve community involvement, provide leadership training, and promote worthy citizenship.

The student body kept up with school news through the S.C.A. sponsored radio program, "Panther Tales," and by the monthly publication of "Scratch." The S.C.A. Handbook and directory became a guide to Who's Who at Page, as well as, a handy reference to a friend's telephone number.

Projects initiated responsibility and dedication, for example, "Dime Day" helped a fellow Panther and the S.C.A. continued its support of Cheng Chinlung, an adopted child in Taiwan. At Christmas time, the S.C.A. collected canned food and gave these gifts to needy families. The Student Welfare Committee sent greeting cards to the sick and to Page service men.

The S.C.A. stimulated school spirit with an official welcome for the new Panthers—the eighth grade class. The "Rat Day Assembly" was highlighted with prizes for the best costume and best impersonation of a favorite movie star. The "Harvest Dance" that followed in November moved the spirit with scare crows and pumpkins.

The Christmas spirit was in the air with Christmas carols filling the halls and through contests sponsored by the S.C.A. A gift of money was presented to the homeroom having the most original door decoration, and prize money was also given to the class that presented the best skit at the S.C.A. Christmas Assembly.

The excitement of a new slate of officers to lead the student body through the 1972-73 school year created much tension and enthusiasm during campaign week. The newly elected officers began their preparation by attending the State S.C.A. Convention in Roanoke.

The club closed its activities of the year with a tribute to the graduating class of '72. "Senior Week" was climaxed with an assembly planned by the seniors which kept some of the traditional, as well as, presenting something of the new—a representation of their talents and ideas.

Linda Lowers presented Ronnie May with an album for his winning student directory cover design.

Members of the S.C.A. were W. Gray, M. Knight, J. R. Whiteside, B. Cunningham, J. Deavers, R. Alger, A. Pence, J. Vile, L. Cave, D. Pence, (ROW 2) B. May, D. Cubbage, M. Aldridge, J. Comer, L. # FBLA receives state honor chapter award

The active F.B.L.A. pursued both educational and recreational projects. The educational projects included visiting a special education class, having guest speakers and praticipating in the Madison Regional meeting, where the club received several honors. For the bulletin board, activities book and public speaking, the club received a superior rating. Luan Cook received an outstanding rating on her essay. The exhibits pulled a merit rating. For recreation, the club had both a Christmas and a senior recognition party. The main fund raising means was the selling of the Tom Wat products.

Debbie Jenkins and Nancy Parlett admired the display that went to the Madison Regionals.

F.B.L.A. members were: B. Turner, C. Keyser, D. Jenkins, B. Hilliards, T. Comer, S. Turner, W. Reed, C. Comer, M. Jenkins, E. Smith, (SECOND ROW) V. Long, B. Cubbage, D. Kiblinger, (THIRD ROW) A. Courtney, D. Breeden, S. Freeze, D. Freeze, D. Draih, L. Cook, P. Gregory, V. Hansborough, Forensic members were Keith Zirkle, Carol Bloom, Donna Weakley, Cindi Good, Keith Kyger, Laura Smith, Linda Lowers, Kathy Stanulis, Karen Koontz, Lynn Fox, Judy Meadows, Shelia Lam, Kevin Higgs, Carolyn Cubbage, Patsy Cubbage, Kim Dinges, Janet Housden, Debbie Painter, Tracy Mills, Vicki Ruffner, Sharon Turner, Shelia May, Sue Pence, Jimmy Frazier, Ricky Miller, Joel Vile, Shelia Thompson, Gary Saylor, Liz Jenkins, Marcy Lam, Randal Good, Tom Gregory, Johnny Deavers, and Larry Housden.

Shelia May received a warning in "The Still Alarm" that the hotel was afire, but it did not faze the indifferent characters.

Forensic group enters state drama festival

A group of players from the Forensics Club won a superior rating at the District Drama Festival for their production of George Kaufman's "The Still Alarm". Their superior rating earned them an invitation to perform at the University of Virginia. For that performance, the players received certificates and a shield for their trophy plague.

The club took additional honors at the District Festival in the poetry division. Sue Pence placed first in the girls' poetry reading.

During the monthly meetings, the Drama section read a number of plays in group situations and presented several short plays in the reader's theatre for the consideration of the Forensics Club.

The drama group also got an introduction to the dancing arts. The choreography kept everyone moving with an Alley Cat Routine and basic steps to the Fox trot and waltz.

The other division of the Forensics Club worked on writing and editing modern poetry. Various selections were read and discussed.

Active D.E.C.A. wins Bronze Star Award

The Distributive Education Club at Page County High began its fourth year with the opening of school. DECA has four purposes, which are represented by the four points of the DECA Diamond. These are to develop civic consciousness, social intelligence, leadership development, and vocational understanding.

An active year began with an officers training workshop for chapters of District 10 DECA at Elkton High. This was followed by the annual Fall Rally. This event was held at Page County High. Over 400 DECA members from neighboring high schools met to learn about DECA and DECA events. Page County DECA members helped plan and carry out this meeting.

DECA donated $75 worth of food to needy families as a Christmas project.

An initiation and installation ceremony for officers and new members was held in January. Following the ceremony, refreshments were served in the cafeteria to parents of DECA members. DECA members participated in DECA district contests at Luray High in February. Robert McCoy won second place in public speaking, Greg Williams won third place in advertising, and Lois Hammer won third place in sales judging. Billy Foltz represented the chapter at the Annual State Leadership Conference in Roanoke, Virginia March 24-26.

As part of March, National DECA Month, DECA members voted to donate $60 from the treasury to the Carroll Baugher Kidney Fund, and began $5 monthly payments to the Page County High School Band for the purchase of a new uniform.

DECA members also presented the program Page County High School on the Air for three weeks during the Month of March for club publicity.

On April 25, DECA enjoyed a field trip to the Giant Open Air Market and the Richfood Food Distribution Center in Richmond. An Employer-Employee Banquet was held in May at the Caverns and Coach Restaurant as a gesture of appreciation for employers of DE students. A picnic for members and guests was given in May. Page County DECA was awarded the Bronze Star Award for its chapter activities. This is the first such award ever earned by Page County High School DECA.

The Distributive Education program included 17 working students for the 1971-72 school year, and 55 DECA members. This was the largest number of working students and members in Page County High School history. In the 1971-72 school year, DECA and Distributive Education reflected the motto of Distributive Education Clubs of America by "Developing Future Leaders for Marketing and Distribution."

Pom-Pon, Glee, and Pep add color to school events

Girl's dominated the Pom-Pon group, the Glee Club, and Pep Club. Performing at parades, homecoming, pep rallies, and some basketball games, the Pom-Pon girls added zest to these events with their high-stepping streamer-filled routines. The Pep Club promoted spirit with pregame posters, pep rallies, and group enthusiasm during games. While the Pep Club organized for spirit, the Glee Club belted out songs, new and old. Singing for enjoyment was the sole purpose of the club.

Members of the Pep Club were: D. Sampson, D. Drain, J. Housden, S. Johnston, P. Pence. 2nd ROW: K. Heiston, J. Louderback, T. Mills, T. Wolfe, L. Stanley, N. Morris. 3rd ROW: K. Dinges, L. #### F.H.A. makes time work for them

The FHA carried their out theme "Make Time Work for You" in a year of action and service projects. The collection of candy and gum wrappers helped many children through the U.N.C.I.E.F. fund. Once again Santa made his annual visit to the children's Christmas party with a sackful of toys. Tray favors were made and given to the local nursing homes and hospitals. The FHA and FFA held their annual Spring dance and served at each others' banquets.

Another year came to a close with a trip to Swannanoa, Boar's Head Inn and Monticello and the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet.

FHA members were: Mrs. Haycock, P. Long, Sec. A. Grubbs, Pres. S. Comer, S. Watson, D. Rucker, V. Pres. B. Turner, Rep. T. Comer, D. Foltz, Treas. D. Cubbage, D. Drain, Miss Harpine 2ND ROW: D. Promoting knowledge of Spanish speaking people, their countries and customs was the objective of the Spanish Club. The main activities included Spanish Initiation and the Spanish Fiesta which gave the members an insight on Spanish traditions and customs. At the fiesta, members danced the Mexican Hat Dance, sang Spanish Songs and played a Spanish game called "El Cuerop)". Club members financed their activities with a basketball concession and a cake raffle.

French club learns cultural differences

TOP: French members relished good food and fellowship at the Xmas party.
BOTTOM: After refreshments club members enjoyed fun and games.

Students who selected French as their second language usually found time in their activity schedule to join the French Club. On November 17, new members donned the garb of the French to be initiated into the club. The activities of the year centered around the French language with the learning of new French songs, presenting a French play, and viewing slides from France. The year ended with a picnic for club members.

Monogram, Science, and F.T.A. experience active year

Lettered athletes in the Monogram Club served the school by sponsoring the Homecoming Dance, the Miss P.C.H.S. Beauty Pageant, and the athletic banquet.

Science Club promoted science projects which provided students with creativity and expression in scientifically defined categories. Some of the various activities included a bulletin board in the cafeteria, a basketball concession, a radio program, and a tour of Merck Chemical Plant in Etkton, Virginia.

A teaching career seemed to interest the members of the Future Teachers of America. The Club spent activity periods viewing films about the growth of the profession and the educational systems of other lands. In early fall the F.T.A. sponsored school wide Apple Day to increase club treasury. Mrs. Kite, the guidance explained councilor, ways students prepare for college. ### The National Honor Society awards two scholarships

The National Honor Society selected only those students who had excelled in scholarship, leadership, citizenship, and character. Commemoration of such students, being the prime function of the society, took place during an assembly at which fourteen juniors received recognition.

The N.H.S. awarded two scholarships to deserving college-bound seniors. To finance the scholarship, the society sold THE VALLEY BANNER weekly, held concessions at two home games, and participated in KLASSROOM KWIZ. At the spring banquet, the club members witnessed the installation of new officers for 1972-73.

Library Club attempts paperback collection

An interest in books and the classification of them should have been the motivating force of the members in the Library Club; however, it appeared to be an odd mixture of sincere interests and lackadaisical attitudes.

The primary project was an attempt to purchase a paperback book collection for the library. To finance this project, the club collected dues, held concessions, and sponsored a bake sale at which only the sponsor was present to sell the baked goods.

The librarian and members presented book talks on newly acquired books at several meetings.

The club also displayed bulletin boards during both "Book Week" and "National Library Week".

Members of the Library Club were: T. Pettit, B. McCoy, K. Beaghn, P. Pence, D. Cubbage, A. Collier, J. McDaniel, J. Rinaca, J. Comer, S. Harper, T. Good, L. Stanley, G. Weakley, J. Vile, D. Gray, D. Weakley, T. Dean, P. Price, D. Hilliard, B. Comer, J. Broyles, E. Jenkins, K. Dinges, R.

People! People! Swarms of people! Who were they? New faces, old faces, smiling faces, frightened faces, silent faces, a new principal, twelve new teachers, two hundred newcomers from the elementaries. A total of seven hundred nine students in all. All crammed and cluttered the halls, cafeteria, and classrooms with one common purpose to be a part of the educative process at Page County High.

Eighth graders elect Rhonda Couch president

The Class of '76 arrived with the spirit of immediate involvement. The class, dressed as their favorite TV or movie stars, paraded the halls on Rat Day, October 29, 1971. Debbie Maye as "Mary Poppins" and Ricky Cubbage as "Doris Day???" took the honors of being the most appropriately dressed. Several members of the class presented an original skit by Donna Good entitled "There is a Santa Class" for the SCA Christmas Assembly. Nine eighth grade girls entered the Miss P.C.H.S. Beauty Contest with Debbie Maye winning the first runner-up. The eighth graders sponsored a dance after the Montevideo game. Athletic-minded students played basketball on the J.V. girls' and 8th grade boys' teams. The CLASS OFFICERS were Rhonda Couch (president), Donna Good (vicepresident), Linda Stanley (secretary), Donna Hilliard (treasurer), and Ray Dofflemeyer (reporter).

Deavers lead freshmen

The class of '75 is one of the most spirited (or just the most voluminous?). Out of 4 pep rallies, the freshmen won the pep stick 3 times and tied once with the eighth grade. The 8 J.V. Cheerleaders for the 1972-73 year were all freshmen. The class was the first to sponsor an after game dance. Some class members became involved in the J.V. sports program. While all members experienced SCAT and STEP tests which gave a profile of their potentials. All of Mr. Cullers English classes enjoyed a Shakespearean production of "Romeo & Juliet" at Madison College. Darlene Freeze, one of the freshman beauties, won the Miss P.C.H.S. title.

The class officers were Johnny Deavers, president; Debbie Cubbage, vice-president; Susie Comer, treasurer; Jenny Comer, secretary; and Danny Jones, reporter.

Juniors select controversial prom theme

The Class of '73 made desperate attempts to raise needed money for the Junior-Senior prom. Some were desperate enough to have an "underground" bake sale. Their candy sale proved to be very successful; however, the Valentine Dance was more fun than profit. During Homecoming, the juniors sold mums. With all this hard work behind them they plunged into making original decorations to make the prom entitled "Superstar" the most memorable. Money was not the only concern of the juniors, because some participated in sports, plays, beauty contests, Boy's & Girl's State, and clubs with diverse activities. The class selected Jerry Davis, Bruce Smith, Barbara Cubbage, and Eleanor George to attend Boy's and Girl's State. Sue Pence was the best girl poetry reader in the district. The class officers were Vickie Ruffner, President; Barbara Cubbage, Vice President; Debbie Kiblinger, Secretary; and Barbara May, Treasurer-Reporter.

It was a year of firsts for the senior class. Some were able to use their ages of eighteen to elect their county officials, after hearing classroom campaign speeches by the candidates themselves. Restless seniors changed tradition. Tired of the old way of doing things at the senior assembly, the class displayed talent including poetry, music and a skit entitled, "The Twelve Years of School". The traditional candle lighting ceremony was observed to pass on to the juniors the seniors' place. Graduation introduced another first as graduates purchased their caps and gowns for keepsakes.

What is a community? A place? A name? Buildings? No, the community is people. A people working together as a unit - a group working, playing, laughing, crying, living - people living in a form of some unit. The community is a combination of people's ideas and ideals, their dreams and their realities. The community is the people and the people are the community one can not exist without the Progress is the community's work. Shenandoah opened a community center and won national recognition in the Women's Club. Stanley lost a landmark, the depot, and opened a new drive-in bank. Luray's by-pass was controversial but its airport made way to the jet age. Rockingham businessmen took pride in Page County's youth.

The yearbook staff all business thanks firms who solicited. A special thanks to The Banner needed pictures, and to Gary Buracker, Bobby McCoy, and Laura Smith for their active sales record.

Through our year of successful rebuilding, we enjoyed the awaited bliss of victory and tasted the bitterness of defeat. We were individuals with our own thoughts and emotions, finally given the chance to discover that success is nothing but an opportunity. With this thought as our drive, we found that becoming is superior to being, and that through cooperation we could shine. Thus, we settled back to view our accomplishments, simply enjoying the miracle of ... THE SPIRIT OF '72.
